WAS PECULIARLY MARKED.

Colt Had One Eye in the Center of the Forehead—A Novel Reason.

Rutland, June 10.—A colt with one large eye in the center of the forehead and no upper jaw or nostrils was given birth to Saturday night by a mare owned by H. H. Stratton of this city.

The animal was dead when born and the owner has not yet decided whether he will have the body mounted. The lower jaw protrudes about two inches beyond the upper lip. Aside from the deformities mentioned, the animal was perfectly formed.

The eye, which is about the size of hen's egg, has the appearance of a large automobile goggle. A local veterinary accounts for this by the fact that the mother has a great horror of automobiles.

The Sacred Five.

Five is the great sacred Chinese number. There are five virtues, five colors (yellow, white, green, red and black), five household gods, five planets (Saturn, Venus, Jupiter, Mars and Mercury), five ranks of nobility, five tastes, five cardinal points (the middle, east, west, south and north respectively) and five tones.

British Subjects.

All persons born in British dominions, whether of British or foreign parents, are British subjects, and so are children and grandchildren of natural born British subjects, wherever they may be born.

Sailed Back Covers.

Books with delicate bindings which have become soiled through much handling can be satisfactorily cleaned by rubbing with camellia oiler dipped in powdered pumice stone.

TALK OF THE TOWN.

They would be pleased to show you the infants' white dresses at Perry's.

Moving pictures and illustrated songs at the pavilion every night and Saturday matinee. Programme changed weekly.

Among other delightful numbers to be found on the programme for the Spaulding alumni concert will be a cornet solo by Karl Foreell.

A CLEVER BURGLAR.

How He Fooled a Man Who Thought He Couldn't Be Robbed.

"B. P. Hutchinson used to say no burglar ever could get into his house without waking him," said a central station detective the other day, according to the Chicago Record-Herald, "but it remained for Chief Simon O'Donnell to put one over the famous trader."

"You know, Mr. Hutchinson was famous in Chicago's commercial life years ago and was known popularly as 'Old Hutch.' He prided himself on the fact that burglars never had got into his house and often boasted of the fact to his intimates. One day while he was at lunch with Chief O'Donnell and a number of other friends the company fell to discussing a crime that had been committed the night before."

"I'd like to see anybody get into my house," Mr. Hutchinson said. "Why, I hear every tick of the clock all night!"

"I'll bet you a dinner for this crowd," said the chief, "that I can produce a man who will enter your house and you will not know of his visit till morning."

"Mr. Hutchinson accepted the wager, and it was agreed that he was to let the chief have a latchkey, so that the burglar could get in without being disturbed by some patrolman. Mr. Hutchinson also agreed to leave some article of value in the parlor where it could be found readily. The chief said the robbery would be committed within the following week."

"Three days later Mr. Hutchinson awoke in the morning and discovered that both sheets of his bed, which had been in place when he retired, were gone. So was a little antique clock he had left on the mantel. He hurriedly dressed and hastened after breakfast to the chief's office. O'Donnell saw him coming and, as he entered the office, greeted him with:

"Mr. Hutchinson, I have two sheets and a clock that belong to you. We will have the dinner today."

"The burglary was done by a former criminal who at the time had reformed. He did the job at the request of the chief. How did he get the under sheet? He rolled Mr. Hutchinson over, rolled the sheet after him and then rolled him back."

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

The Australian water lizard walks erect.

The tree frogs of South America sing as musically as larks.

Sheep in time of famine eat the wool from one another's backs.

Gamecocks sometimes take to catching mice, which they devour greedily.

An eagle can live twenty-eight days without food, while a condor is said to be easily able to fast for forty days.

A decapitated snail kept in a moist place will, it is claimed, in a few weeks grow a new head quite as serviceable and good looking as that which was taken away.

The chameleon's eyes are situated in bony sockets projecting from the head. By this curious contrivance the peculiar little animal can see in any direction without the slightest motion save of the eye.

Ivory as a Tonic.

"Some physicians," said a druggist, "give an infusion of ground ivory and milk in the spring to stimulate and strengthen listless patients. It is a good remedy, for all I know to the contrary. Certainly it is an ancient one."

He opened a medical magazine and pointed to this quotation from Schröder's Zoology, a work published in 1637:

"Elephas (elephant)—His teeth are only used in medicine and vulgarly called ivory. The virtues: It cools and dries, moderately binds cuts, strengthens the inward parts. It is good for the jaundice, it takes away pains and weakness of the stomach, it heats the epileptic, resists poisons, drives off spring melancholia. The dose is half a dram."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

His Was Harder.

It was in a country tavern, where a newly arrived commercial traveler was holding forth.

"I'll bet my case of samples," he said, "that I've got the hardest name of anybody in this room."

An old farmer in the background shifted his feet. "Ye will, will ye?" he drawled. "Want, I'll have to take ye up. I'll bet $10 against your samples that my name'll beat yours."

"Done," cried the salesman. "I've got the hardest name. It is Stone."

"The old man was game."

"Mine," he said, "is Harder."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Starting It Early.

Starting with his heels on their honeymoon, a man entered a railway office and, as always in the past, bought only one ticket.

"The bride noticed the oversight at once."

"Why, you bought only one ticket, dear," she said.

"That's so, dear," he answered. "I forgot all about myself."—The Bits.

An Expert Accountant.

"Do you not think, Miss Smiles," he pleaded, "that in time you might learn to love me?"

"Possibly," the girl replied. "If you could render me a statement of what you are worth, Mr. Giles, I might learn to love you. I'm very quick at figures."—London Mail.

WASHINGTON.

Work has begun on the foundation for the new parsonage.

Some of our town's people were summoned to appear before the grand jury at Chelsea last week.

Q. L. Slocum is able with the aid of crutches to look after his business at the saw mill no days.

Several from this place attended the quarterly meeting at the East Williams-town church Saturday and Sunday.

An entertainment was given at the school house last Saturday evening, the proceeds to go for an engine for the protection from fire.

WEBSTERVILLE.

There will be a box party on the church lawn Wednesday evening. Coffee will be served with the boxes. All are cordially invited.

What Is the English Throne?

The throne—what is it? Is it the stone chair of Westminster abbey? That is only occupied once by each king or queen, and that only at the coronation ceremony. Is it the chair of state in the house of lords or the reception chair at Buckingham palace or the sumptuous gilt thing which the king uses at Windsor when he receives the foreign envoys? It is an interesting question, which some people would like to have answered. Most everybody, however, has come to the conclusion that in the majority of countries the throne is merely a symbol, and the expressions "he has succeeded to the throne" and "speeches from the throne" are only metaphors.

The Quiet Dresser

Is just as particular about the cut of his Suit as the ultra fashionable fellow. While radical changes in styles do not appeal to him, he insists upon all the little variations that each season introduces. His coat and vest must be of the correct length and the lapels of the latest width and depth, and the trousers neither too wide nor too narrow, but just right. This is the store for these conservative and refined dressers. Our eyes are always focused on the new features as fast as they come out. A choice variety of conservative models in every kind of Suitings—black, blues, many shades of grays, browns and all sorts of neat mixtures. $10.00 $12.00, $15.00, $18.00 and $20.00. Remember that we count it a pleasure to show the man who drops in "just for a look."
